| Inhalte | For the most part of their history, visual arts equalled static images. This changed significantly in the second half of the 20th century. With new media technologies such as video cameras available at low prices, the art system began to brim with electronic moving images and sound. Video art emerged, along with media, performance, and body art, thus challenging established hierarchies of technologies. This seminar gives an introduction into the origins and the developments of electronic time-based visual arts from the post-war period to today with examples of artists such as Nam June Paik, Bruce Nauman, Ulrike Rosenbach, Ericka Beckman, Artur Zmijewski, Anna Baumgart, Ragnar Kjartansson, Mika Rottenberg, Wu Tzu-An and many more. |
