Inhalte	As writing and publishing are both required for completing the Master Project, we will experiment in this workshop with different formats of writing and publishing. Based on the different topics, participants are asked to bring various examples to discuss, from printed matter to digital publications, blogs, podcasts, etc. According to the specific needs of every project, participants can propose and try out their chosen form of publishing, as mockups that can be discussed within the group. At the core of this workshop, we ask questions around choices and modes of presentation that directly engage with the contents of every project, how it can be made public and who it is addressing.
